

Transfer learning using pretrained ImageNet models has been a standard approach in many medical imaging tasks.

We demonstrate that supervised transfer learning at scale can indeed lead to strong medical performance in medical imaging.